Academic Council

Duties & Responsibility of Committee Members

The Academic Council Shall have the following duties :-

In a deemed-to-be-university, the Academic Council is the principal academic body responsible for maintaining academic standards, approving syllabi, coordinating research, and conducting examinations. It is also involved in recognizing diplomas and degrees from other institutions and determining their equivalence with the deemed university's qualifications. The council plays a crucial role in ensuring the quality of academic programs and advising on regulations, curriculum, and syllabi.

Here's a more detailed breakdown:

Key Functions of the Academic Council:

Maintaining Academic Standards:

The Academic Council oversees all academic matters, ensuring the quality of teaching, research, and training within the institution.

Approving Syllabi and Courses:

It is responsible for approving the curriculum and syllabus for all academic programs offered by the deemed-to-be-university.

Coordinating Research Activities:

The council plays a role in coordinating research activities across different departments and faculties.

Conducting Examinations:

It is responsible for making arrangements for the conduct of examinations and appointing examiners.

Recognizing Degrees and Diplomas:

The council evaluates and recognizes qualifications from other institutions, determining their equivalence with the deemed university's degrees.

Advising on Academic Policies:

It provides advice on academic policies, regulations, and curriculum development.

Promoting Research:

The council encourages and supports research activities within the institution.

Supervising Academic Work:

It exercises general supervision over the academic work of the institution, providing guidance on teaching and evaluation methods.
